GRADUATE FACULTY SPOTLIGHT

Dr. Eric Gamess earned his Ph.D. in Computer Science from the Central University of Venezuela in 2000. He has held positions in South America and the USA, such as "Universidad del Valle" (Cali, Colombia), the Central University of Venezuela (Caracas Venezuela), and the University of Puerto Rico (Rio Piedras and Mayaguez, Puerto Rico). He is an Associate Professor in the Department of Mathematical, Computing, and Information Sciences. He has been a member of organizations, and program committees of several national and international conferences. He is the editor of 27 proceedings of conferences in the field of Computer Science, and has been acting as the director of the Venezuelan Journal of Computing since July 2012. Dr. Gamess has published more than 80 papers in international conferences and peer-reviewed journals. His research interest is focused in network performance evaluation, IPv6, cybersecurity, network simulation, vehicular networking, Internet of Things, and parallel processing. Dr. Gamess is coordinator of the Master of Science in Computer Systems and Software Design program.

Dr. Thomas Leathrum received his B.A. in 1988 from Johns Hopkins University (majors: Mathematics, Philosophy; departmental honors in Mathematics). He received his M.A. in 1990 (concentration: Mathematics) and Ph.D. in 1993 from Dartmouth College (concentration: Mathematics, subfield: combinatorial set theory, advisor: James E. Baumgartner). He was an Assistant Professor of Mathematics at Berry College (Rome, GA) from 1993-1998. From 1998 to present, Dr. Leathrum has been a professor at Jacksonville State University (Assistant Professor 1998-2004, Associate Professor 2004-2008, Professor 2008-present). Dr. Leathrum serves as the program director for the Master of Science in Mathematics program.
