

DIVISION OF ACADEMIC AND STUDENT AFFAIRS

Vice Provost and Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs

Academic Advisement

The Office of Academic Advisement continues to advise and assist Undecided students. Presently, there are 515 students coded as Undecided for Fall 2013.

Michelle Green, Director, has conducted two Wednesday Workshops. "Getting Back on Track" was the first workshop on September 4 and the second Workshop, "Registration Information" was September 25. There has been an increased amount of students attending the fall series of Workshops.

Ms. Green collaborated with Stephanie Miller to present a PowerPoint presentation to the Psychology department faculty and staff on September 13. The presentation was also given to the department heads in the College of Education on September 16. Ms. Green spoke about "Good Practices of Academic Advisement" and Ms. Miller delivered crucial information related to student financial aid.

Ms. Green also attended the Alabama Academic Advisors Conference at Shelton State Community College in Tuscaloosa, Alabama. She served as a Moderator for one of the Concurrent Sessions.

Academic Enhancement

As part of our campus wide efforts to increase student academic success and retention, the Department of Academic Enhancement & Tutoring Services is now offering a variety of academic support modules for students. For the fall 2013 semester, sixteen courses are being supported by Supplemental Instruction (SI), peer-led study sessions. These sessions are unlike traditional tutoring in that sessions are designed around highly collaborative peer learning activities. SI leaders attend the course, meet with the faculty member teaching the supported course, plan activities around course content under the direction of the faculty member, and encourage students to attend sessions. SI leaders must have already completed the course with an "A" and maintain a cumulative 3.25 GPA. Courses selected for SI have been identified as gateway and/or high attrition courses that are typically difficult for students. To date, 194 students have attended supplemental instruction sessions.

Many students cannot attend regularly scheduled tutoring sessions; therefore, we are offering a drop-in math lab at ACE on Mondays from 5-9pm, Wednesdays from 5-9pm and on Sundays from 6-9pm. We have a very experienced math tutor who provides assistance for students who may just need occasional assistance or need help with online components of math courses. Over 30 students have come to receive assistance in the math lab this semester with most of those students attending on a regular basis.

Additionally, the science department has graciously allowed our department to create a satellite tutoring center in Martin Hall. The Martin Hall tutoring center is home to SI sessions including chemistry I & II, physics, organic chemistry, and health microbiology. Students may also schedule individual or small group tutoring for gateway science courses or drop-in for additional assistance for these courses. Many thanks to Tracy Casey and the faculty in the science department for helping our tutors offer academic support services to students in this area at such a convenient location for students.

Initial data for scheduled tutoring appointments at the Academic Center for Excellence show another increase in the demand for individual and small group tutoring for core courses. At the current rate, the ACE Tutoring Center will have scheduled over 16,000 appointments for students to receive academic assistance for the Fall 2013 semester. This number does not reflect tutoring at the Martin Hall satellite tutoring center, nor does it account for students attending SI or drop-in tutoring services at Martin Hall and the ACE Math Lab.

Campus-wide implementation of GradesFirst, a web-based student retention and advising program, has been successful in many respects. Career Services, Counseling and Disability Support Services, Learning Services, and academic support services provided through the English department and the math and computer science department are now tracking student usage of these services through GradesFirst. Many departments are using GradesFirst for advising purposes, while other departments are using the system simply to monitor student visits to their offices. The student body has been introduced to GradesFirst through the help of different departments, as well as, through STU 101 courses. Students are using the system to request tutoring directly from their own personal profiles. There has definitely been a surge in tutor requests through GradesFirst because these requests can now be made with one click on a link beside the course in which the student wishes to receive tutoring. Student requests for tutoring are automatically sent to the ACE Tutor Coordinator. Advising appointment campaigns allow advisors to reach out to students early to inform them of available times for advising. Advisors send out requests and students can schedule their appointments directly through GradesFirst. Professors can record attendance in GradesFirst and the student will automatically receive an email indicating that he or she has been marked absent from the class. This feature also allows professors to view absence patterns that are indicative of student failure. Additionally, professors can mark student “at-risk” of failing a course. These “at-risk” notifications are automatically sent to the student’s advisor. The Department of Academic Enhancement & Tutoring provides on-going support to faculty, staff, students, and administrators in the use of GradesFirst.

The Department of Academic Enhancement in cooperation with the Student Government Association and Dr. King, Associate VP of Student Affairs, is now offering extended hours for study hall at the Academic Center for Excellence, as well as, monitored study hall on the 9th floor of the library. Students can now study and use the academic resources available at ACE Tutoring Center Mondays-Thursdays 8:00am – 2:00 am and Sundays from 6:00pm – midnight. The monitored study hall on the 9th floor of the library is open from 7-10:45 pm Sundays - Thursdays.

They also learned all about living, eating and playing on campus. This is the third year that Gamecock Orientation has been mandatory for all incoming freshman. Student as well as family members were asked to complete an evaluation at the end of the day. Based on the evaluations the most outstanding area recognized was customer service of the Orientation Team. The students and the parents that attended orientation gave very positive feedback about

Critical Mass, a program of Photolucida, is about exposure and community. The idea is simple—photographers (from anywhere) submit a 10 image portfolio. This work is then pre-screened by a committee of approximately 20 great jurors. From those votes, the 200 top Finalists are determined, whose work then goes on to a jury of approximately 200 of the world's best photography professionals who have agreed to view and vote on the Finalists' work. The Top 50 are chosen from this group of 200 finalists.
